

Travelling

Introduction

Traveling is one of the activities that people usually do not only for vacation purposes, but also for work and study purposes. People often travel overseas and they have to meet people who can only communicate in English. This is why studying English for traveling purposes is very important. Before traveling, people usually go to a travel agent in order to book plane tickets, hotels, and other things related to accommodations.

Having conversations at airports is also inevitable when people are traveling. When traveling on leisure purposes, people usually visit tourism places that have so many things to explore and thus urge them to perform a lot of conversations with the tour guide and other people there. Thus, it is crucial for college students to be capable of handling different conversation types in the aforementioned places.

In this module, you will learn various English expressions that are commonly used in travel agencies, airports, and tourism places. At the end of studying this module, students will be able to use various English expressions to communicate with other people in travel agencies, airports, and tourism places. The topic in this module is relevant since students are required to be able to communicate with other people in different public places and different time settings. Therefore, this module's topic functions as the continuation of the previous modules' topics, especially module 2.

This module is divided into three units based on the place where the expressions take place, namely at the travel agent, at the airport, and at tourism places. It is arranged so because normally people arrange the trip first at the travel agent, go to the airport to get to the destination, and then visit tourism places at the destination area. In each unit, you will be exposed with examples of dialogs, audio recordings which are followed with a thorough discussion on each important expression found in the dialogs. Following the discussion, you will be given some tasks that will challenge your capability in performing the expressions.

To learn through this module, you can use some strategies. first of all, read all the dialogues presented along with the explanations. Try to understand the explanations so you will know the meaning, purpose, and contexts in which the expressions are used. While reading the sample dialogues, you can play the audio to listen as well as try to imitate to the pronunciations. Next, please do the tasks given according to the instructions given. Try to find a partner to practice the conversation tasks. After completing each task, you can play e sample dialog in the recording to check your performance. When you are ready, you can test your personal capability by doing the Formative Test at the last part of each unit. But before doing that, you may want to prepare yourself first through reading the summary. Happy studying!
